My city
Ice city
In between the snowed points of the mountains I sharpen my ear and hear The whisper, the wind and birds there on the top the wind roars Lower, my enchanted city by the population and the streets but the cutest thing is the green of the trees and the sound of the lakes and rivers when the snow has retreated the snowman has been left behind and the crystalized water pond the woolen clothes are put away and they wait for the spring to go out and take a walk down the green and blossoming prairie and the birds sing and the butterflies dance and look forward the beauty of my city
